problem, regardless of that other bill.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. Let.... Under this particular bill there are provisions included that relate to a state agency making up new certificates of title.

SENATOR BROMM: Correct.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Correct? And so, with respect to that aspect of the bill, you intend for the previous bill to indicate that the state would be viable, if mistakes are made in concocting these titles to abandoned property. Is that your intention or not your intention?

SENATOR BROMM: It isn't my intention to create a situation of strict liability at all.

SENATOR BEUTLER: It is not?

SENATOR BROMM: It is not. The other bill would have required...does require negligence to occur.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Right.

SENATOR BROMM: And so, in this situation that we're speaking of now, there would have to be a lack of following the proper procedures, I would think, or negligence on the part of the agency or entity involved, Senator Beutler.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. But under the negligence standard, though, you would intend the previous bill to apply to certificates of title under these procedures.

SENATOR BROMM: There could be some circumstances where that bill could apply.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. And if, in making up that certificate of title, they were not...they did not...they did not take into account the proper notice being given, then that would...that would bring them...bring the state into a liability situation. I'm not.... Senator, let me make clear, I think...I appreciate all the work the committee has done to straighten out this whole
